Structure Cullen-Roberts House (TEX-237)

Congress and Market Sts. Wooden frame, one story, pedimented tetrastyle portico on short, broad pillars across entire front of house, massive cornice. The breadth and weight of the pediment would seem more appropriate to a two-story design. Built in 1839 for Judge Ezekiel W. Cullen. Owned by Benjamin Roberts after the Civil War. In recent decades the house was purchased by Cullen's grandson, restored by Raiford L. Stripling, architect,
